

SALLY AYHAN

Presenter

Sally Ayhan is an accomplished presenter with experience across a broad range of mediums, all beginning in Istanbul, Turkey. She holds a Bachelor of Arts in Sociology and completed her last semester at Bosphorus University in Istanbul where soon after she began her media career as a culture and lifestyle writer for Time Out magazine, unveiling 'underground' Istanbul to thousands of expatriates and tourists. Combining her adventurous streak and passion for languages Sally utilised her Turkish language skills and appeared on Turkish television, featuring in various commercials and prime time drama series.

Since returning to Sydney in 2008, Sally turned her focus to television and quickly built up an impressive presenting portfolio. Her 'hands on' attitude lead Sally to producing and presenting for various online channels and In 2009, Sally was selected to join the team at The Weather Channel as the weekend presenter where she can be seen covering all the latest weather news and events. From cyclones to drought breaking rains and surf conditions, her role largely involves researching and adlibbing a range of weather reports and going live to air every hour with Australia NOW. Sally also gives live radio reports on a broad range of national and local radio stations including the ABC, 2UE, TripleM and Nova.

An interest in what goes on behind the camera has lead Sally to produce a range of online content including lifestyle videos, short form documentaries as well as researching and hosting an online film review program. As an avid foodie, she also produced and presented her own food and nightlife segment online where she enjoyed interviewing restaurant owners and Chef's about their influences and culinary skills and of course tasting their handy work!
